

LARGE GROUP PROCESS & TIMELINES OVERVIEW FROM QUOTE TO ENROLLMENT

The process of shopping and enrolling a large group is very different than that of a small group. Each group is rated individually based on not only the employee demographics, but also based on other information collected during the quoting process. Therefore, carriers require more up-front information to accurately produce rates and avoid re-rating the group after the applications are submitted. To prevent lengthy delays in quoting and getting the most accurate rates, having correct and complete information at the start of the process is critical. Help set the proper expectations with your clients by engaging with them at least three to four months in advance and help them understand the extent of the large group process.

Example Group

The below chart demonstrates the time needed from requesting a quote through the members receiving their ID cards. Timeframes can vary, especially when missing items are needed in the quote or enrollment process. By getting missing items as quickly as possible, you can help to limit the overall time needed to implement a new policy.
